STATISTIC

Another senseless death.

LIFE

"She was sharper than people half her age," said longtime family friend David Muskal. "I think less than 20 years ago, she was skipping rope on the porch. At 97, she was spry as can be." Ms. Mallinger, of Squirrel Hill, was one of six siblings and had three children, five grandchildren and one great-grandchild. Ms. Mallinger stayed in good physical shape walking through her Squirrel Hill neighborhood, making conversation with the many people she considered friends. "You've never met a more vivacious 97-year-old," said Brian Schreiber, a member of Tree of Life. "She was just so full of life. "She had so much energy." She was a victim of the Pittsburgh synagogue shooting.

AMENDMENT

I think that there should be a law or an amendment that authorizes the government to check and control the selling of guns, maybe some law that protects the people that have mental illness. We have seen that most of the people that are responsible for mass shootings suffer from mental illness, so the gun shops should check and investigate deeply the people that buy weapons. I probably would have made the following amendment: " The people have the right to bear arms but they must pass an obligatory process of investigation of their records that should take no less than one month of length, after the process the citizen is able to get the gun if you have been a citizen for at least 1 year."
